THE PEOPLE'S ANSWER.

Doubtleſs, citizen Adet, as you have made a publication, by way of an addreſs or appeal to the people, you wiſh to know what effect it has, and expect an anſwer.

Know then, that we are as little flattered as deceived, by your opening a correſpondence with us. Having ordered and dignified our dear beloved Preſident to receive and anſwer miniſterial addreſſes, and whoſe heart you will find ſound enough, and head long enough, for the fruit; it is inſulting us that you do not confine yourſelf to him. It is true, you have adopted the revolutionary mode of doing buſineſs; but, thank God, we have no occaſion for a revolution juſt now.

You might, one would think, have learned ſome thing of your predeceſſors. Genet, the firſt apoſtle of the republic to this country, in purſuance of his orders, publicly preached peace, and privately dealt out commiſſions of war. While devout in aſſurances that France wiſhed us to remain neutral and happy, he was rapidly fomenting a war whith was to be charged to the Britiſh; and all things worked well till, impatient for the rupture, he threatened an appeal to the people, which blaſted him in a moment. The cloven foot was out, and he could do no more.

He was taken away, and Fauchet, who underſtood the game of whiſt better, was put in his place, with ſorrow for what happened and loving aſſurances for the futire. Fauchet preſerved a fair exterior, and might therefore, unſuſpected, have remained here to this day, had not the downfal of his patron Robeſpierre, rendered it neceſſary to ſacrifice him too: and yet he was by no means idle. He took precious confeſſions, diſpenſed dei gratias, of which he found a few thouſand were ſufficient for American patriots; and propheſied—to his own court, not to us—of JEFFERSON to come; whoſe way he prepared.

But, you, at a ſingle dath, have overſet the whole buſineſs. You muſt needs lug into your addreſs the very name of Jefferſon, for no earthly purpoſe but to diſcover the object of it! And now there is not an elector, on this ſide the Delaware, that would not be ſooner ſhot, than vote for him.

Unverſed in diplomatics, it cannot be expected that we ſhould meddle with the queſtion, whether a nation three times regenerated by Thomas Paine, whom Jefferſon and his diſciples exalt above Moſes or Jeſus, is not abſolved from the faith of treaties, and may not make truth of a French lie, by finding a Britiſh lie to match it—Nor with the queſtion, whether the French may not lay aſide the law of nations, as well as the law of God, and ſubſtitute in the room of both, imperious circumſtances, as more adapted to the energy and principles of a pure republic—Nor yet with what is leſs doubtful, whether the French, when reverſing all other maxims, might not reverſe the ancient one, that right of dominion is founded in grace, and found that right in the want of grace; and in that way make out their title to direct and plunder us in common with other neutral nations. On theſe points we refer you to Timothy Pickering for the preſent; and ultimately to the teaching of time. But one thing we have ſenſe enough to know, that halters are not the proper cords of love.

It is not neceſſary, citizen, that we ſhould conclude with the uſual ſalutation, as you are ſo fully prayed for in governor Adams's proclamation for thankſgiving.

LEGISLATURE OF MASSACHUSETTS.

A Reſolve paſſed the Legiſlature, authoriſing the Electors of Preſident and Vice Preſident, when convened on the buſineſs of their appointment, to fill up any vacancies which might priorily happen in their body by death or reſignation. The Governor ſigned the reſolution and it was placed on file in the Secretary's Office, after which his Excellency cauſed his name to be eraſed therefrom; and ſent to the Senate the following

MESSAGE:

Gentlemen of the Senate,

HAVING had before me a reſolve of the 22d inſt. providing for filling up any vacancies in the Electors of Preſident and Vice-Preſident of the United States, which may be occaſioned by death or reſignation before the time of their meeting for the purpoſes of giving their ſuffrages, and prematurely approved the ſame; ſince which having more fully conſidered the ſubject, I find a ſtrong objection operating upon my mind, and I have eraſed my name; that the Electors choſen by the people and their repreſentatives for the great and important purpoſe of electing a Preſident and Vice-Preſident of the United States, ſhould have the power of filling up vacancies in their own body, under any circumſtances whatever, appears to be dangerous to the liberties of the people, and ought not to form a precedent in a free government. If upon farther deliberation you ſhould be of my opinion, I ſhall be happy to concur with you in a mode more conſonant to the ſpirit of our government.

SAMUEL ADAMS.

Council Chamber, Nov. 23.

The Senate were of opinion, that as the Governor had ſigned the Reſolve, and as it had been recorded in the Secretary's Office it had become a law, and required no farther conſideration.

The general court have paſſed a reſolve directing Preſident Waſhington's farewell addreſs to be publiſhed with the acts and reſolves of the Legiſlature.

Yeſterday afternoon the following meſſage was delivered from his Excellency to the Legiſlature.

Gentlemen of the Senate, and Gentlemen of the Houſe of Repreſentatives,

By a meſſage, which I yeſterday laid before the Senate, I gave a full, free and candid account of my proceedings reſpecting a reſolve of the two Houſes, for filling up vacancies which may poſſibly happen in the Electors of Preſident and Vice-Preſident of the United States.

My mode of conduct on this occaſion, I know is, and, I flatter myſelf, will be, conſidered to be as well the reſult of an ardent wiſh to preſerve free, important, and ſecure the elections of thoſe very important officers, as a deſire to diſpatch the buſineſs at this juncture before the Legiſlature. I wiſh to promote the true intereſt of my country—I have no other object in view; and, therefore, it can be of no conſequence to me, in what mode this queſtion is diſcuſſed, nor in what form your opinions ſhall be expected. I am, not, at preſent, for ſupporting the idea, that after the reſolve had been ſigned by me, and delivered to the Secretary, that it was not a formal act of government. Be that as it may—the queſtion is now properly before the General Court, and if the Reſolve, to which I have made an objection, was, under all conſiderations, an act of the government againſt my ſigning the ſame, the only queſtion now is, whether it ought to be repealed, and another proviſion made for the ſame object?

My objection to the reſolve, or my reaſon why the ſame ought to be repealed, (if it is one) is, that a delegation by the Legiſlature to the Electors appointed by the citizens in their individual capacity, for the election of Preſident and Vice-Preſident, to fill up vacancies in their own number, by death or reſignation, is a dangerous power, and tends to the eſtabliſhing a dangerous precedent: but ſhould my Fellow-Citizens of the Senate and Houſe of Repreſentatives, think differently from me, while I ſhall feel quite contented with your deciſion, I ſhall be happy, that I have candidly acknowledged an error in ſigning that reſolve, and yet done, with firmneſs, what has appeared to me as the true intereſt of the State of which I am a member, and of a nation of which I am a Citizen.

SAMUEL ADAMS.

Council Chamber, Boſton, Nov. 24.

The above meſſage was committed to Hon. Meſſrs. Bacon, Wells, and Dane, of the Senate; and Meſſrs. Sprague, Euſtis, Lincoln, and Coleman, of the Houſe; who were enjoined to ſit in the evening.

The following is the Reſolve, to which his Excellency the Governor objected.

WHEREAS vacancies may happen in the Electors of the Preſident and Vice Preſident of the United States of America, by reaſon of Death or Reſignation: therefore Reſolved, That ſaid Electors appointed in this State be, and they hereby are directed to meet at the State Houſe, in Boſton, on Tueſday the ſixth day of December next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, for the purpoſe of ſupplying ſuch vacancies; and the ſaid Electors, who may then and there be preſent, are hereby empowered to fill up all ſuch vacancies which may happen as aforeſaid, by electing by ballot, ſo many ſuitable perſons for Electors of Preſident and Vice-Preſident, as may be neceſſary to ſupply ſuch vacancies, and to declare the perſon or perſons ſo appointed by ſaid Electors preſent as aforeſaid; or the major part of them, to be an Elector or Electors of the United States, duly choſen for the purpoſe, and certify the ſame to the Governor of the commonwealth in order that he may grant all neceſſary Certificates.

And it is further Reſolved, That the Secretary of the Commonwealth be, and hereby is directed forthwith, to tranſmit to the ſeveral Electors aforeſaid, already appointed, an attested Copy of this Reſolve; and alſo, that he lay before them any Reſignation of an Elector, which he may receive before the time appointed, for electing the Preſident and Vice-Preſident.

A USEFUL HINT TO SEA FARING PEOPLE.

From ſeveral experiments, it appears, that middling ſized men, or thoſe between five feet ſix inches, and five feet nine inches high, weighing about 150 pounds, and are in bulk equal to about 2¾ ſolid feet; and the ſmall ſized men, or thoſe between five feet three inches and five feet ſix inches in height, weighing about 135 pounds, and are in bulk equal to about 2¼ ſolid feet: and from thoſe experiments it alſo appears, that moſt men are ſpecifically lighter than common water, and much more ſo than ſea water. Conſequently, could perſons who fall into the water, have preſence of mind enough to avoid the fright uſual on ſuch occaſions, many might be preſerved from drowning; and a very ſmall piece of wood, ſuch as an oar, would buoy a man above water, while he had ſpirits to keep his hold.

A gentleman who had been on board a Malteſe ſhip of war, obſerved hanging to the taffarel, a block of wood almoſt like a buoy, and ſo balanced that one end ſtood upright carrying a little flag ſtaff with a ſmall vane: the perſon who was on duty on the poop had orders to cut the rope by which the buoy hung, upon any cry of a perſon falling over board; and as the block would be in a ſhip's wake by the time the perſon floated therein, he was ſure of having ſomething at hand to ſuſtain him, till the boat ſhould come to his aſſiſtance, and ſhould that take ſo long time to do, as that the diſtance from the ſhip to the man rendered him inviſible, yet the boat would have a mark to row towards him ſhown them by the vane.

APPRENTICES INDENTURES FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

Alexandria, December 8.

IN COUNCIL,

DECEMBER 1, 1796.

VIRGINIA TO WIT:

The following are the names of the persons who have been returned Electors to vote for a President and Vice-President of the United States:

William Nimmo, Nathaniel Wilkinson, John Taylor, Wilson Cary Nicholas, William Madison, Benjamin Temple, Josiah Riddick, John Mason, Robert Walker, George Markham, Peter Johnson, Nathaniel Terry, David Saunders, Catesby Jones, Daniel Carrol Brent, Leven Powell, Moses Hunter, Archibald Stuart, John Bowyer, John Brown, and Robert Crocket, Esquires.

Advertised by order of the Executive, pursuant to an Act of the General Assembly, intituled "An Act, for appointing Electors to choose a President and Vice President of the United States."

A. BLAIR, c. c.

STEVS. T. MASON, Esq. mentioned in our last to have been re-elected a Senator in Congress, appears, by a Richmond Paper, to have been chosen by a majority of 60 votes.

Extract from a letter from Philadelphia, Nov. 25, '96.

You have seen by the newspapers that Mr. Adet's functions, as Minister from France, are suspended—I give you my comment.

It has been long understood, that a certain party in this country has been urging the French government either to hostility with us, or at least to the appearance of it, as the means of supporting their influence and consequence—Accordingly I learn that from time to time symptoms of discontent have been manifested by the Directory, which again have subsided and given way to more friendly appearances.

The full tide of success at a certain period, led the Directory to form the plan of attacking Great Britain thro' her commerce—Hence the measures in Italy and towards Portugal—Hence too the order with regard to neutral powers—The pretext for retaliating upon Great Britain was to cover an actual, tho' not a formal, war upon the commerce of neutral powers.

A change of the tide explains the answer which the Directory gave to Mr. Munroe and which he communicated in a letter of the 28th of August, importing that their ships of war would not be authorised to act as had been intimated, unless Great Britain had given or should give the order which was pretended.

Mr. Adet probably received in course the last determination, with instruction to communicate it to our government, and it is believed he has not been officially advised from his own government of the declaration made to Mr. Munroe.

In this state of things, Mr. Adet was told by the party, that something to excite in the community the fears of war with France would greatly favor Mr. Jefferson's election—The note from him to the Secretary of State, communicating the resolution of the Directory with regard to neutral powers which you have seen, was to answer that end.

Lest the dose should not be strong enough, further measures were to be pursued: The idea of a dissatisfaction of the French Government with our Executive was to be publicly declared, and the suspension of the Minister's functions was to give a more serious countenance to the proceeding.

But will the business stop here? this will depend upon events: If success returns to the French arms, the project of attacking Great Britain through the Neutral Powers will be resumed; And as the trade which she carries on with the United States is her most vulnerable branch, that must be lopped off if possible. If the French arms are unsuccessful, the Ministerial functions will be resumed by Mr. Adet, or most probably, by a successor; For it is certain, that the Directory have repeatedly mediated a change of the present Minister, and have made more than one appointment which has been again revoked: The case was of Mr. Mangourit who had been Consul at Charleston, and had been displaced for misconduct towards our Government. Letters from Paris in August, say, that the Directory, upon enquiring into the cause of his displacement, had revoked his appointment as Minister—This does not look like an intention immediately to quarrel with us, and no new events could have taken place to produce it. This is a further key to Mr. Adet's conduct.

PHILADELPHIA, DEC. 5.

John Adams, esq. vice-president of the United States, arrived in town last Friday evening from Massachusetts.

BOSTON, NOVEMBER 26.

HIGHLY INTERESTING.

Yesterday the ship Caroline, arrived here in 36 days from Havre, in France. The most prominent articles by this arrival are contained in the following

SUMMARY.

The army of the Sambre and Meuse advanced on the 23d of Sept. and continued to do so from the 23d to the 30th of Sept.—A number of obstinate conflicts were fought in, which the French were invariably successful—On the 30th, the Austrians were defeated with considerable loss after a severe conflict—The Arch Duke marched with 15,000 men to attack Moreau in conjunction with Latour and Newendorf.—The 2d of October, the army of the Rhine and Moselle defeated the Austrians with great slaughter, took between five and six thousand prisoners, and near 100 officers; a division of his army marched against Ratisbon—Buonaparte has taken the Citadel. A Paris paper of the 14th, announces the capture of Mantua. A division of the army of Italy took Botzen, on the German side of the Tyrol. A peace was signed in the secret Council, with the King of Naples; he shuts his ports against England. An English envoy has arrived at Paris.

A letter from Paris, dated the 14th October, of undoubted authenticity, says, "That the French have concluded a Treaty with the court of Naples, by which the Neapolitan ports are to be shut against England, during the war."

By an arrival from Cadiz, yesterday, 42 days, we learn, that war was declared there the 14th Oct. between Spain and England; that the Spanish fleet which sailed from Cadiz Oct. 1. consisting of 20 men of war, 4 frigates, and 3 sloops bound up the Streights, had fell in with and captured 3 British frigates and transports, of Admiral Jervis's, and sent them into Alicant, where the fleet all had arrived safe, and that a British transport had been sent into Cadiz, taken by a Spanish frigate.

CHARLESTON, NOV. 21.

Letter from the American Consul at Cape Francois, to Captain Robert Hatch.

SIR,

Previous to your sailing you are desirous to know from me, whether the Directory approve of the sentence passed by the Delegates in the south, on the American vessels lately carried into the Aux Cayes, Lanceveaux, &c. I do assure you, that they greatly disapprove of their conduct, so far as relates to the seizure, and that they have even issued a decree against it. Mr Southonax observed as he, on a former occasion, that we certainly had a right to enter the ports of their enemies, provided we carried no prohibited articles. This right is stipulated to us by treaty. I mention the circumstance, as there is within these few days, a prevailing report that the French privateers have instructions to capture our vessels bound for British ports. They mean, however, to condemn every American vessel which is not provided with a sea letter. I will, therefore, thank you if you will be pleased to publish this last article, for the information of the merchants trading to St. Domingo.

JACOB MAYER.

Cape, 8th Brumaire, 5th year.
(30th Oct. 1796.)

NOVEMBER 22.

By the arrival of capt. Hatch, from Cape Francois, we learn that the report of Southonax's having gone to France, in the frigate commanded by Capt. Barney were unfounded. Southonax and Capt. Barney were both at the Cape at the time of Capt. Hatch's departure. General Laveaux had sailed in the frigate which accompanied Capt. Barney in his cruise on this coast.

Captain Hatch says there were upwards of fifty American vessels lying in the different ports in the Bite of Leogane, which have been sent in by French cruisers on suspicion of their having been bound to English ports in that island.

Before Capt. Hatch left the Cape, seventeen American captains had arrived there from the out ports, who had been captured; they were in hopes that the directory would discharge their vessels, as it was understood that they disapproved of the conduct of the captors: but it was very uncertain whether they would succeed or not, as from the unsettled situation of affairs, their power was very limited.

The day before Capt. Hatch sailed, the brig Sally and Betsy, David Ross, master, arrived from Philadelphia; he was bound to Trinidad; five days after he left the Capes, being then in lat. 34. 30. long. 74. he was overtaken by a gale of wind, in which his vessel was three times thrown on her beam ends; the last time his masts gave way, and went over the side; he then was compelled to bear away for the Cape.

A poor young fellow, guilty of trifling levities, was severely reprimanded by his master, and then discharged without a character, which put him to great straits—making fruitless applications, through the vindictive master. Advertised: "Wants a place, a young man, without a character from his late master; he is open to his faults, and will amend himself agreeable to the will of any gentleman who may be inclined to engage him as a servant and valet for which he is well qualified." His advertisment was answered by an Irish gentlemen, an interview took place, the usual questions were put, which the fellow answered laconically: "My master as an illnatured, crabbed man; it is true I used to be out late with my idle companions; I lost him a pair of mounted pistols, for which he retains my wages." The gentleman exclaimed, "Then thou art the man for me now that I know your faults, but depend upon it if you commit any of those in my service, worse will become of it!" To come to me to morrow—and here is ten guineas for you, and pay the scoundrel for his pistols." The young man served his new generous master faithfully to the hour of his death, who left him an annuity of 100l: the man is now possessed of considerable property in the city of Dublin.
